QUESTION 23 Poor now

Stress genuinely and try to avoid facetiousness at this point. Question 23 (a) explores what the informant understands by feeling "poor". If the word "poor" seems inappropriate use the alternative "very hard up".

QUESTION 24 Poverty

Stress the word "poverty". Do not explain what you think it means if you are asked. Seek from the informant his definition and write it in the box as clearly as you can.

QUESTION 25 Voting

Ask for those old enough to have voted in the last election (March 1965). We are not concerned who they voted for (although they will probably say) but would like to know if they are sufficiently involved to vote at all. Be careful to reassure people that this is confidential and as far as you are concerned non-voting is blameless—many people consider that voting is legally compulsory or morally obligatory and so voting figures are over-estimated. Try to get a clear recollection by fixing the incident (time of day, who they went with) if necessary. Stress National, not local elections.

QUESTION 26 Action on poverty

We are interested in what the informant thinks can be done. Give as full an answer as possible.

Please write in any additional notes.

This family lives in the centre of a rather bleak new council estate built near the Firth of Forth: low lying so open to the north winds. Few social amenities in the estate. Their flat is comfortable, clean & lived in - a real home. They are on good terms with neighbours but not over-social. The parents are very bound up in their daughters - both attractive girls - well-grown. The younger very lively, the teenager quiet & studious, both present towards the end of the interview. Joyce hopes to enter the Civil Service. The mother regularly attends parent-teacher meetings at the primary school & is very satisfied with their progress generally. Respondent is a witty, lively man who takes life as it comes, spends all he earns but who is beginning to worry about his future once the merger closes his factory. His wife is an attractive and intelligent woman, who does most of the managing, decorating, budgeting, etc. Their initial suspicion over the interview arose from having been pestered to buy the Encyclopaedia Britannica: as things progressed they became most helpful. The family is actively associated with their church, both girls are closely involved with the local Brownie pack, the elder as an assistant to the leader.
