QUESTION 23 Poor now

Stress genuinely and try to avoid facetiousness at this point. Question 23 (a) explores what the informant understands by feeling "poor". If the word "poor" seems inappropriate use the alternative "very hard up".

QUESTION 24 Poverty

Stress the word "poverty". Do not explain what you think it means if you are asked. Seek from the informant his definition and write it in the box as clearly as you can.

QUESTION 25 Voting

Ask for those old enough to have voted in the last election (March 1965). We are not concerned who they voted for (although they will probably say) but would like to know if they are sufficiently involved to vote at all. Be careful to reassure people that this is confidential and as far as you are concerned non-voting is blameless—many people consider that voting is legally compulsory or morally obligatory and so voting figures are over-estimated. Try to get a clear recollection by fixing the incident (time of day, who they went with) if necessary. Stress National, not local elections.

QUESTION 26 Action on poverty

We are interested in what the informant thinks can be done. Give as full an answer as possible.

Please write in any additional notes.

This household lives in an old-style covered flat 50 yards from a main street leading to Granton harbour. The street is dingy. Lots of children, dead front gardens, shabby passages of entry. Has an air of transience...

Inf. is rather unrefresh in her person, but unlined, fresh complexioned, stolid. Husband is wiry, seems a different generation than his wife—obviously enjoys himself on his own. I think he actually gives her less than £10 housekeeping, especially now when he is offside.

The son is a handsome boy, who sat reading throughout both interviews, occasionally breaking in with "That's a silly question" which was slightly off-putting.

The home is comfortable but un-stylish: clean and bright. Informant appeared deeply attached to her son, getting up to put on the kettle for his tea, offering him a choice of food for his next meal, etc. during the interview.

Fortunately, the husband returned to watch a race on T.V. just as I left, so was able to complete the household. This was not an interview where either respondent was of a type which vouchsafed much additional information.
